The Milk Cellar

The Milk Cellar was built underground, to keep it cool in the summer and warm in the winter, as a storage for Milk and Butter only. It was not used as a Root Cellar for vegetables. The onions and other vegetables would have made the dairy products taste bad.

Mrs. Realy was a good business woman because she would hold her butter until the price went up and then sold it to the market in Waterloo.